“The Cirrus mattress ticked all the boxes”

“Just to let you know that Peter is finding the mattress very comfortable, he tells me he is sleeping much better”
MORDEN COLLEGE

“Thank you for allowing us to trial your Cirrus mattress. The patient who used it was a young woman who had advanced malignant disease and spinal cord compression. She was at severe risk of pressure damage but found the traditional airwave mattress uncomfortable, due to the fluctuating cells and was disturbed by the noise of the motor. She found these mattresses unacceptable and asked to return to a static high grade mattress.

When the Cirrus became available to us she was transferred to it and found it to be very comfortable, the memory foam layer giving her relief. Her pressure areas remained intact over the four weeks she was on the mattress. The motor was silent, a huge benefit when she wanted to sleep.

We will certainly use these mattresses in the future.”

“Sue Ryder Care recently purchased 164 beds and over 70 mattresses from Lynas Foster to be distributed among 12 of our care centres nationally. The beds chosen included Sentida and Carisma beds and were considered by the Health and Safety team and clinical staff to be the best available on the market and most suitable to our needs. Due to changes in our specifications of the products, because of the nature of our client base, there were a number of alterations and upgrades required often at the last minute. Lynas Foster were able to create bespoke products and alter the manufacturing process accordingly to change the beds to our demands.

The installation process was well organised and went ahead with very little difficulty and the initial training sessions that took place proved hugely beneficial to the staff working with the new beds. Further training sessions were then organised and any problems encountered by staff were addressed in these sessions.

Lynas Foster have been very flexible in their approach and accommodating to our often changing needs and the product, once sufficient training has been received, has been received well in our Care Centres. The mattresses have proved comfortable with our residents and were certainly good value for money. The beds are certainly one of the best on the market and function as expected. We have also put in place a Service Level Agreement that allows the Charity to feel comfortable that should any problems arise they will be dealt with in a prompt and professional manner.”

“May I add my thanks also, for your patience and understanding in loaning the mattress in the interim. I have advised the family that the PCT are to pay for its hire and they are absolutely thrilled that the patient will be able to continue to reap the benefits of this impressive piece of equipment. It's made a real difference to her comfort.”

HOSPISCARE, EXETER

“We have now purchased 5 Cirrus specialist mattresses from Lynas Foster and been very pleased with these – previously we hired and purchased mattresses from Huntleigh however following a trial of the Cirrus mattress found these to have more functionality and much quieter with very good feedback from patients.

Lynas Foster have also been very responsive to delivering mattresses purchased or for hire and the costs are competitive with other specialist mattress providers. We are also continuing to hire a Cirrus mattress and planning to purchase a number of additional Cirrus mattresses in the New Year”
ST JOHN'S HOSPICE, LONDON

“The mattress is great the patient loves it and all her pressure areas have remained intact – the patient very seldom gets out of her bed. The staff find the mattress very easy to work with, in fact some did not realise that it was an air mattress as it is so quiet”
WESTERN ISLES HOSPITAL

“Thames Hospicecare has recently invested in 4 Cirrus Mattresses as part of its annual replacement programme. We had been looking for a mattress that would be compliant with the new regulations (related to entrapment & bedrails) but did not want to change our bed chassis'. We were introduced to the Cirrus and have had them in place for around 6 weeks. Before buying we 'test drove' one for a week – with one of our patients being a willing 'test driver'”

Patient feedback has been very positive, especially from those who have not liked traditional air flow mattresses. One commented 'I don't feel sea sick like I did on the other one'. Others have commented how comfortable they are and how quiet they are.

The nursing team have also found them very quiet and easy to clean. They appear to fit our bed chassis better than the other brand we use, the wires being less obtrusive. From the patient care perspective we have found them quite beneficial, not only for their pressure relieving qualities but we have observed that patients tend not to slide down the bed as much and more importantly when they are sitting on the edge of the bed they do not slide off – these mattresses are much more supportive during sitting/standing transfers.

Overall, in the short time we have had the Cirrus mattresses, we are pleased with them and we plan to purchase more as part of our ongoing mattress replacement programme.”

THAMES HOSPICECARE, WINDSOR

“On the inpatient unit of the North London Hospice we have been using the Cirrus mattress for several months. During that time it has proved to be effective in providing pressure area relief to patients with high dependency and in being comfortable for them. Patients who have refused to use other systems have found this mattress more than acceptable. The nurses, being aware of this, now tend to use this system for the highest dependency patients..”
